

Main Category	Subcategory	Examples
A. Procedural Grievances	A.1. Political/Legal Procedural Injustice	Perception that political or legal procedures are biased, unethical, or manipulated. Indicators: Unfair trials, distrust in police, government officials failing to keep promises, and excessive bureaucratic obstacles in public administration (red tape).
	A.2. Institutional Procedural Injustice	Unfair practices within formal institutions (e.g., education systems, judiciary, academia, government) impacting career advancement or personal dignity. Indicators: Nepotism, public humiliation, lack of transparency, favoritism.
	A.3. Organizational Grievances	Unfairness in day-to-day functioning of organizations, resulting from poor management or inconsistent procedures within an organization. Indicators: Biased performance reviews/grading, poor communication, vague role descriptions, inefficient internal processes.
	A.4. Customer/Service-Related Grievances	Procedural failings in service delivery and consumer interactions. Indicators: Denied healthcare, slow or dismissive customer service, invalidation of complaints.
B. Relational and Interpersonal Grievances	B.1. Interpersonal Victimization & Betrayal	Feeling harmed or betrayed in personal relationships. Indicators: Bullying, interpersonal conflicts, backstabbing, gaslighting, broken trust.
	B.2. Social Exclusion & Disconnection	Social isolation, rejection, or emotional invisibility. Indicators: Being ignored, rejected, or left out, feeling of loneliness and isolation.
	B.3. Status Threats and Symbolic Marginalization	Undermining of personal identity or symbolic position within society. Indicators: Fear of losing majority or dominant status, threats related to minority or marginalized identity, stereotyping or discrimination based on gender, ethnicity, culture, or class; erasure or devaluation of cultural identity; exploitation linked to social or economic vulnerability.
	B.4. Relational Free-Riding and Cooperation Failure	Breakdown of mutual support and fairness in interpersonal efforts. Indicators: Group work imbalance, conditional help, emotional manipulation.
C. Distributional Grievances	C.1. Economic Inequality and Insecurity	Financial instability and systemic barriers to economic well-being. Indicators: Poverty, housing crisis, job loss, underpaid labor.
	C.2. Workplace Distributional Injustice	Unequal recognition or resource allocation in professional settings. Indicators: Overwork without reward, lack of promotion, invisible labor, feeling disposable at workplace.
	C.3. Service and Social Distributional Grievances	Unequal access to essential public goods or services affecting well-being. Indicators: School funding imbalances, unequal (medical) care access, unpaid domestic labor, inadequate support for families in need, inefficient allocation of resources.
D. Structural and Systemic Grievances	D.1. Identity-Based Discrimination	Grievances based on marginalized identity. Indicators: Racism, sexism, ageism, ethnic exclusion.
	D.2. Institutional Betrayal and Neglect	Failure of institutions to protect or support the needs of individuals or groups. Indicators: Toxic workplace, retaliation for whistleblowing, systemic disregard for well-being, psychological safety breach, ignoring marginalized groups' concerns, symbolic endorsement of harm, failure to respond to injustice, perceived legitimization of unethical actors.
	D.3. Systemic Exclusion and Legal Barriers	Legal, regulatory, or systemic rules and institutional failures that hinder access, rights, or inclusion, and that prevent institutions from protecting or supporting individuals or groups they are meant to serve. Indicators: Immigration restrictions, informal practices over formal rights, discriminatory regulations, bureaucratic hurdles that limit participation or benefits.
	D.4. Historical and Generational Grievances	Collective grievances rooted in long-term historical injustices and inherited traumas affecting communities or groups across multiple generations. Indicators: Colonization effects, unresolved war trauma, social contract breaches, systemic historical oppression.
E. Geographically-rooted Grievances	E.1. Environmental Inequality	Grievances related to unequal exposure to environmental harm, or lack of protection from ecological risks, often shaped by class, race, or region. Indicators: Proximity to pollutants, unsafe drinking water, climate inaction, extreme weather vulnerability, degraded local ecosystems.
	E.2. Territorial Marginalization	Marginalization due to location or territorial identity. Indicators: Lack of services in remote areas, geographic isolation, xenophobia.
F. Personal and Intimate Grievances	F.1. Intimate Life Disruption	Intrapersonal grievances tied to family disputes or breakdown and traumatic events that disrupt personal life trajectory. Indicators: Family breakdown, abandonment, loss of loved ones, disruption of personal life trajectory due to traumatic events (divorce, war).
	F.2. Life Transitions and Missed Expectations	Challenges in navigating key life stages. Indicators: Job search burnout, lost ambition, midlife regret.
	F.3. Social Identity and Role Pressure	Role strain and social pressure related to personal identity. Indicators: gendered caregiving, juggling work/family, identity conflict.
	F.4. Self-perceived Shortcomings	Grievances stemming from dissatisfaction with one's own perceived limitations, traits, or abilities, often rooted in internalized expectations, self-comparison, or social pressure. These grievances focus on internal attributions: the individual blames themselves rather than external circumstances, and often evoke emotions of guilt, shame, regret, or inadequacy. Indicators: Expressions of shyness, self-blame, regret over missed opportunities, acknowledgment of personal weakness, lack of persistence, feelings of shame, incompetence, or low self-worth, internal conflict between aspiration and self-perception, negative body image.
	F.5. Generational Disconnection and Challenges	Feeling misunderstood or unfairly judged across generations, including difficulties adapting to social or technological changes. Indicators: perceptions of generational unfairness, digital isolation, lack of recognition of past struggles.

TABLE I
GRIEVANCE TAXONOMY